Solon Sees '61 Period Of Peril, Indicates Stronger AF In Making

WASHINGTON (AP) — Foreseeing a period of great peril for the nation beginning in 1961, a key Democratic lawmaker indicated Sunday that Congress will multiply funds to provide for an airborne alert by U.S. bomber forces.

The chairman of the House Defense Appropriations subcommittee, Rep. George H. Mahon of Texas, said he thinks Congress will authorize three or four times the $5 million dollars asked by President Eisenhower to prepare for an airborne alert.

Such an alert would keep a substantial portion of U.S. heavy bombers in the air at all times, fully armed with nuclear weapons, safe from any sneak attack on ground bases and in position to strike at enemy targets immediately after any atomic attack on this country.

On Program
Appearing on CBS-TV's "Face the Nation," Mahon agreed with administration spokesmen that "this nation is stronger than any nation in the world today" in overall striking ability. But he said, the country is heading into a two-or three-year period, starting in 1961, when the Soviet Union's superiority in intercontinental ballistic missiles will present "the most frighteningly important situation that we have ever been in in our lives."

Mahon said "any town in this country could be hit in the next 30 minutes" by a Soviet ICBM and we have no effective way of fending off such blows.

He expressed doubt that any such attack would come soon but foresaw a Soviet missile superiority of about 3:1 in the critical period ahead and "no one in the Pentagon, in Central Intelligence or in our Congress knows" what Soviet intentions will produce in that period.

Six To A Year
The Texan saw no need for an immediate airborne alert but said "we may have to have it six months or a year from now" to insure against having our major retaliatory power wiped out by a sneak attack.

Mahon's comments were made shortly before Secretary of the Air Force Dudley C. Sharp reiterated the administration position that total U.S. military power—bombers, missiles, Polaris submarines and mobile task forces—is adequate to discourage enemy attack.

"And, if we follow our plans as we propose to do, it will continue to be adequate," Sharp said.

Sharp conceded the United States may be behind the Soviet Union in missiles, but he said the important thing is over - all strength. In this he said there is no "deterrence gap," or shortage of power to deter attack.

This is a view, promoted by the administration, that is expected to undergo renewed attack from critics as U.S. defense plans face further congressional scrutiny this week.

Star Witness
The star witness Monday will be the chief on naval operations, Adm. Arleigh A. Burke, who will make two appearances. He goes before a House committee in the morning and before Senate committees in the afternoon to answer questions about defense, space projects and related subjects.

The military spending plans, on which Burke will be quizzed, got new criticism Sunday from Sen. Warren G. Magnuson (D-Wash.), a member of both the Senate Space and Appropriations committees.

In a transcribed radio interview, Magnuson said "we've got to spend more money" on intercontinental ballistic missiles. Otherwise, he said, this country cannot keep its striking strength up with a potential enemy such as the Soviet Union.

Sen. Allen J. Ellender (D-La.), a member of the Appropriations Committee, raised another question that Burke could be asked about. In a recorded radio report, Ellender said testimony of military leaders makes it plain "that a great deal of disunity still exists among the three arms of our military services."

Sharp, who was a Capitol Hill witness last week, repeated his general views in a radio-TV quizzing by Sen. Leverett Saltonstall (R-Mass) taped for Massachusetts stations.

Stronger Words
But in somewhat stronger words than previously, Sharp said: "There may be a missile gap, but this is not the important thing. I am convinced there is no deterrence gap. In considering our whole deterrent posture, we must consider our bomber force as well as our deployed intermediate-range missiles. We must consider our Polaris submarines, our mobile task forces, the Jupiters which will be deployed in foreign countries."

"The whole complex of these weapons constitutes our overall deterrent posture which I consider to be adequate now and, if we follow our plans as we propose to do, it will continue to be adequate. I do not see a deterrent gap at any time."

It was generally believed the Soviet Union's No. 1 salesman had spent this period out of the limelight in conversations with high officials on closer Cuban-Soviet trade ties. He also was expected to raise the question of resuming diplomatic relations, broken off in 1952.

The only clue to his whereabouts in all that time was a report from an army officer in Matanzas, 50 miles east of Havana. The officer said he saw Mikoyan riding with Prime Minister Fidel Castro's brother, Raul, minister of the armed forces.

A Tass dispatch from Moscow said Mikoyan and Raul Castro visited the Cienega de Zapata swamps near Matanzas. These will be drained and planted to rice to cut down on Cuba's rice imports.

While press and radio were keeping silent about Mikoyan's visit, Minister of Commerce Raul Capero Bonilla praised the Soviet Union as "a firm and steady buyer of Cuban sugar."

Capero said the Soviet Union has bought 345,000 tons of sugar, and with his sale Cuba has disposed of 65 per cent of its 1960 quota in the world market. This is but a fraction of the more than two million tons sold annually to the United States.

Guest At Reception
Mikoyan will be guest at a reception Monday night at the presidential palace but beyond that the events of his visit are unannounced. It still was not known how long he plans to remain in Cuba.

Mikoyan's speech and the union proceedings were carried over local TV and a national radio hookup.

The deputy premier detailed the rise of the Soviet Union to a world power under communism and told the cheering workers: "The Cuban revolution can accomplish miracles too."

He got another big ovation when he wound up his speech with these words in heavily accented Spanish: "Long live the Cuban people!" He left the hall immediately after the speech.

Heart Disease
WASHINGTON (AP) — Heart disease, cancer, strokes and accidents accounted for 71 per cent of the nation's 1,647,886 deaths in 1958.

Reporting this Friday, the Public Health Service said final tabulations show the 1958 death rate from all causes was 9.5 for each 1,000 population, compared with 9.6 in 1954.

Heart disease claimed 637,246 lives while cancer caused 254,426 deaths and vascular lesions, chiefly strokes, killed 190,758.

Red Physicist Dead
MOSCOW (AP) — Igor Kurchatov, prominent Soviet physicist who developed the U.S.S.R.'s first atomic bomb, died Sunday.

Kurchatov, 57, was a member of the Presidium of the U.S.S.R. Academy of Sciences and a director of its Atomic Energy Institute.

Mikoyan Boasts Of Red Might

HAVANA (AP) — Soviet Deputy Premier Anastas Mikoyan boasted of Soviet missile might Sunday but told a rally of Cuban workers his country wants only "peace forever."

The visiting Soviet bigwig got a thunderous ovation from the meeting of the National Federation of Textile Workers when he was called upon to speak, and he was repeatedly interrupted by applause.

"Those who talk of war," he declared, "know that if we can send a rocket to the moon with such precision that we can send a rocket with the same precision to any point on earth."

When the applause subsided, he said, "War is against our wishes — we want peace, peace forever."

With him on the platform was Ernesto Guevara, leftist president of the National Bank of Cuba.

Mikoyan turned up unexpectedly at the rally, dropping his role of the last 24 hours as the vanishing Armenian.

Officials Silent
Officials had been silent about his activities since the Soviet Armenian wheeled out of his swank suburban residence Saturday morning under heavy escort and drove out of Havana.

It was generally believed the Soviet Union's No. 1 salesman had spent this period out of the limelight in conversations with high officials on closer Cuban-Soviet trade ties. He also was expected to raise the question of resuming diplomatic relations, broken off in 1952.

The only clue to his whereabouts in all that time was a report from an army officer in Matanzas, 50 miles east of Havana. The officer said he saw Mikoyan riding with Prime Minister Fidel Castro's brother, Raul, minister of the armed forces.

Catholic Layman
Speaker At Interfaith Chapel

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — A Roman Catholic layman made the principal address Sunday at an award ceremony in the Interfaith Chapel of the Four Chaplains. But he stayed out of the chapel during a religious service.

The ceremony honored Rabbi Maurice N. Eisenstadt, president of the Union of American Hebrew Congregations. He received the chapel's first Spiritual Freedom Citation "in recognition of outstanding service to all people regardless of race or faith."

The presentation and the speechmaking were preceded by a brief service of choir and organ music, and prayers recited by two ministers and a rabbi.

When the service was over, Dr. Shane McCarthy, executive director of the President's Council on Youth Fitness, entered the chapel, which is in the basement of a Protestant church.

After the speeches, Dr. McCarthy left the chapel without comment. The ceremony concluded with a collection and a hymn.

DEATH CAR—This is all that is left of the car driven by SP5 John S. Minter, Tobyhanna Signal Corps Depot. Minter was killed instantly in the collision with a tractor-trailer, near Scranton.

Sgt. Minter Victim In '611' Fatal

A TOBYHANNA Signal Corps Depot soldier, SP5 John S. Minter, 34, of C-99 Charter Oak Terrace, Hartford, Conn., was killed Saturday at approximately 5 a.m. on Route 611 in Covington Township, Lackawanna County, as a result of an auto, tractor-trailer accident.

Minter was removed from the scene of the accident to the Hahnemann Hospital, Scranton, where he was pronounced dead on arrival as a result of a crushed skull and other injuries.

State police from the Daleville Barracks, investigating the accident, said the mishap occurred about five miles southeast of Scranton on the four-lane highway near the former Windmill restaurant on Route 611.

The troopers said Specialist Minter, who was returning to the depot, was traveling south when the tractor-trailer going in the opposite direction, moved across the center line on a right curve and sideswiped and practically sheared off the left side of the sedan driven by Minter.

Knocked From Car
The impact knocked Minter out of his car and on to the pavement.

The tractor-trailer continued on about 150 feet from the point of impact and came to rest on its side across the highway, blocking three of the four lanes.

Traffic was confined to the one north bound lane for about one hour and was opened progressively as the wreckage was cleared.

Nicholas J. Marotta, operator of the truck was taken to the Scranton State Hospital, where he was treated and released.

Both Alone
Both drivers were traveling alone at the time of the accident.

Specialist Minter had been stationed at the Tobyhanna Signal Corps Depot since last November, where he was a cook for the 510th Signal Co.

He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Anna Bell Napper Minter, Hartford, Conn.; two daughters, Rosie and Henrietta, both at home; one son, John Minter, also at home.

Funeral services will be held Wednesday at 2 p.m. from 2294 Main St., Hartford, Conn.

Interment will be in the Veterans Cemetery, Hartford, Conn. A viewing was held yesterday in the Lanterman Funeral Home, East Stroudsburg, for the officers and enlisted men of the Tobyhanna Signal Depot.

Lanterman is in charge of all services.

Report Trap Of Submarine

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (AP) — Argentine air and naval forces were reported unofficially Sunday to have trapped a mystery submarine in a 30x40-mile gulf along the southern Argentine coast.

Official naval sources maintained strict silence, only confirming a search was being made for one or more unidentified submarines in the area of Golfo Nuevo, 650 miles southwest of Buenos Aires.

Naval authorities reported a week ago a submarine had been contacted, but denied a later radio report that it had been hit by a depth charge.

Argentine newspapers published several varying reports concerning the operations.

Democracy said two other submarines had been spotted in the area. It said patrol ships and planes, including Corsairs from Argentina's only aircraft carrier Independence, were believed to have blocked the narrow entrance to the gulf, and that the two submarines were trying to divert attention so their trapped and crippled sister ship could escape.

Car Registration

HARRISBURG (AP) — Pennsylvania's 4,200,000 passenger car owners will receive registration applications in the mail starting Feb. 10.

The state Motor Vehicle Bureau said Sunday approximately one third of the applications will be sent out in the initial mailing. The rest will be mailed by Feb. 19.

Un-American Unit Warns Of Red 'Pitch'

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House Committee on Un-American Activities said Sunday the U.S. Communist party can be expected to make "a stronger pitch" to big business representatives in the future.

The party in effect will be adding prosperity to its familiar "peace" theme of the past, the committee said in its annual report for 1959.

At the national Communist party convention in New York last December, the report said, party leader Gus Hall urged the delegates to show industrialists how peace could increase their profits.

As for the people at large, the report said, Hall suggested they be told how peace and disarmament will make possible the spending of billions of dollars for schools, roads, hospitals, parks and housing, instead of on defense.

The report said that although the Communist party is at a low ebb numerically in the United States now, it is oozing confidence as a result of the Soviet Union's growing international prestige and the exchange of visits between Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev and President Eisenhower.

Party leaders feel Khrushchev convinced large number of Americans that he is sincere in his desire for peaceful coexistence, the report continued.

That being the case, said committee Chairman Francis E. Walter (D-Pa.), the United States should take warning.

Ex-Burma Head Scores Triumph

RANGOON, Burma (AP) — Former Premier U Nu scored a personal triumph and his "clean" faction of the anti-Fascist Peoples Freedom League appeared certain of a big victory in Burma's general elections.

U Nu, who yielded power to a housecleaning military regime headed by Lt. Gen. Ne Win 16 months ago, easily won election to the Chamber of Deputies. He received 26,369 votes while his opponents got less than a fourth as many.

The "clean" faction meanwhile captured a total of 28 seats throughout the country, compared with four for the opposing "stable" faction.

The self-styled "cleans" represented themselves as cleanup forces against corruption that dogged the former regime. The "stables" said they signified stability for Burma's government, which showed marked instability until Ne Win took over.

The "cleans" took seven of Rangoon's nine seats. Votes were still being counted in the two other Rangoon constituencies as returns trickled in from the 215 districts outside the capital where there were contests in Saturday's voting.

Crushing Defeats
Against U Nu's showing, both U Ba Swe and U Kyaw Nyein, leaders of the "stable" faction, suffered crushing defeats in personal bids for seats from Rangoon.

A split in the mildly Socialist anti-Fascist Peoples Freedom League and Communist-led insurgent activity resulted in military rule under Ne Win. The "cleans" claimed the support of the masses while the "stables" were backed largely by businessmen and industrialists.

Crowds watching returns in front of Rangoon city hall Sunday, shouted, "This is what democracy can do." The U Nu faction charged in the campaign that the "stables" were Fascists.

Top leaders of the pro-Communist UNF were wiped out in early returns. Fromer Brig. Kyaw Zaw, considered a pro-Red and a sure winner, suffered a smarting defeat by a "clean" candidate in Rangoon.

Good Morning!
If you think last year went fast, watch this one. It's going just like 60.

Tiny Outpost Provides View Of Trouble

By JOSEPH DYNAN
NASSERIIEH, Syria (AP)—This tiny outpost, perched 1,000 feet above the Sea of Galilee, provides a bird's-eye view of the latest trouble spot in the long history of Arab-Israeli conflict.

Almost the whole area of the demilitarized zone, much smaller than Manhattan's Central Park, stretches out below in the bright sunlight.

(No incidents were reported Sunday along the uneasy frontier.) Throughout Saturday the whole scene was deceptively calm. The green farmlands lay vacant and untended — both Israeli-held farms and Arab-owned farms.

Beyond the truce line in Israeli-held territory of Degania Kibbutz — or settlement — where the sea empties into the Jordan, a couple of trucks could be seen rolling. A slight haze shrouded the lower end of the valley, where the Jordan rolls on south past Jericho to the Dead Sea.

The Sea of Galilee lay flat and untroubled, brightly blue. On the opposite shore the town of Tiberias gleamed creamy white under the sun.

Scene Of Clashes
Yet this seemingly peaceful valley has been the scene of a series of clashes between Syrians and Israelis in the past fortnight in which at least seven persons were killed and 13 wounded.

A long low hill about as long as six football fields — known as Beit Katzir — runs north and south in the center of the disputed area. This is the site of an Israeli settlement that overlooks the Arab farmlands to the east.

Although this is in the demilitarized zone, the Syrians say the Israelis have established permanent military positions on the hill dominating Arab farmlands. Viewed through binoculars, the hill seems to have a series of trenches and what could be machine gun nests.

At the north end of Beit Katzir there is an open air basketball court. A white car of the United Nations truce supervision organization was parked there. A group of Israelis was standing near the car, apparently talking with the occupants.

Triangular Shaped
The demilitarized zone is a roughly triangular shaped tract at the base of the Sea of Galilee. Like two other and smaller demilitarized zones farther north, this area was part of the old Palestine Mandate. It lies north and hence beyond the original Israeli-Syrian armistice line of 1949.

Israel claims sovereignty over the triangle right up to the Syrian frontier, an area which Israeli farmers have occupied to a large extent in the years since then.

Syrians insist the original armistice as endorsed by the United Nations held sovereignty in abeyance and put the area under U.N. supervision.

They say the Israelis violated the armistice by sending in armed frontier police to patrol the area because the original agreement said the local population should do its own policing.

Quit Post
Mammarella quit last November as producer of two of Clark's TV shows when the American Broadcasting Co. demanded that he and Clark drop outside interests in records and music publishing.

Clark accepted the edict and stayed on.

The subcommittee has reported repeatedly that it has found payola to be a nationwide problem. This falls within the purview of the group because of its jurisdiction over the Federal Communications Commission, which regulates broadcasting, and the Federal Trade Commission, which polices the nation's trade industries.

LONDON (AP) — Earl Attlee, Britain's Laborite ex-premier, left London airport for New York Sunday to start a 32-day lecture tour of the United States.

Dear Abby

Feature Film Ran Over

Dear Abby: Before accepting an invitation, is it proper to ask, "What have you planned for entertainment?" Last night my husband and I went to a movie. We were invited to some friends' home for dinner. They served cocktails at 7:00 p.m. and then proceeded to show us some colored "slides" of their trip to Estes Park.

At 11:00 p.m. there was no sign of dinner and they were still going strong with slides of their trip and all the strangers they met on the way. (One half-hour of some old fool from Tulsa smooching his young wife.) At midnight we had eaten every peanut and pretzel in sight. My husband was seething.

At 1:00 a.m. they served spaghetti and meatballs and we got home about 3:00 a.m. My husband isn't speaking to me. How can we avoid a situation like this in the future without offending our hostess?

MRS. R.

Dear Mrs. R. You can't. When one accepts an invitation, he must suffer through the evening like a good soldier unless he can beg to be excused early with a "headache." And in this case one could hardly have been blamed for having developed one.

Dear Abby: My husband was arrested seven months ago for armed robbery. They have now charged him with murder, too. He says he is innocent, but that's beside the point until it is proven. His trial comes up sometime next year. My problem is this: Can it be arranged for a woman and her husband to have relations while he is locked up? Seven months is a long time. And it could be longer before the trial. FAITHFUL WIFE

Dear Faithful: I doubt if the kind of visitation you suggest is permitted in the United States. Check with the authorities where your husband is being held.

Dear Abby: My problem is my sister-in-law. Whenever there is a wedding party or some other big affair, she borrows my husband's good suit for her husband. That way he doesn't have to buy himself a suit and it leaves her free to buy herself a new dress. I am getting very tired of this and would like to tell her so, but I don't want to get her mad at me. How can I turn her down next time without causing hard feelings?

GOOD NATURED

Dear Good: It's your husband's suit. If he objects to having another man put extra miles on it, let him say so. But if it suits him — it should suit you.

Dear Abby: I agree with you 100 per cent when you advise married women to learn how to drive a car at a professional driving school instead of letting their husbands teach them. My husband wouldn't even kill a fly, but he almost advanced me while teaching me how to drive. Sincerely yours, MARGARET

"What's your problem?" For a personal reply, write to Abby in care of this paper, and enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Eye Project For Monroe's Handicapped

PLANS for a sheltered workshop for Monroe County's handicapped residents, if needed, are being discussed by the Monroe County Chapter of Pennsylvania Assn. for Retarded Children and other agencies.

If established, it would train persons handicapped physically and mentally to do productive work. A spokesman for the chapter said other agencies in the county have realized the need for such a workshop and are willing to assist.

The spokesman said that before such a project can be started and before too much planning can be done, it must be necessary to establish and prove a definite need for a workshop.

He appealed to the public to fill out the form below and mail it to P. O. Box 145, Stroudsburg, in order to provide information for the committee prior to next Friday, Feb. 12.

Persons knowing someone with a handicap will do them a service by filling in the form, the chapter source said.

Take Your Choice

Business prognosticators have deluged these first weeks of the new year with rosy prophecies about industry and commerce. They say 1960 will be 12 months of high production and consumption—and we hope they're right.

However, we're a little dubious about some of the reasons they cite for their forecasts. For example, they say "presidential election years historically are good ones for both business and the stock market."

But let's look at the record. There have been 15 presidential campaigns since the turn of the century.

Here's how the market has reacted: It went up seven times, down six times before the nominating conventions. Twice there was little change. Between conventions and elections, the market went up eight times; down three; changed little on four other occasions.

After presidential elections, the market moved higher eight times; dipped downward seven.

On this record, it looks as though you can take your choice. And it looks, too, as though the prognosticators are reading into "presidential years" something that isn't clearly there.

Now The Indians Attack TV

That the American Indians are given a rough deal on television few will deny. When oppressed minorities are everywhere demanding justice it is not surprising that leaders of 19 Oklahoma Indian tribes should have met at the State Capitol and adopted a resolution directed to President Eisenhower and other federal and state government officials protesting the distortions in television pictures that portray Indians as bloodthirsty savages.

There are exceptions. Not all TV Indians are bad Indians. How long would Yancy Derringer, secret agent of the United States Government, have lasted if his Pawnee pal Pahoo had not always arrived in the nick of time to effect his rescue? Currently there is Sam Buckhart, hero of "The Plainsman," pureblooded Indian and Harvard graduate, who as a United States marshal is waging a brave fight on the side of law, order and morality. There are others, including the Lone Ranger's indestructible Tonto, but such exceptions are admittedly few and far between.

Practical difficulties would be encountered if TV were suddenly deprived of this rich natural source of thrill material. Westerns would be tame indeed if frontiersmen and their families were relieved of the imminent danger of being scalped and tortured by Redskins.

A defense could be built up on the argument that non-Indians, as whites are called by the Indians, do not get off too well themselves. It has been estimated that since the introduction of TV at least 20,000 bad non-Indians must have been done to death in Westerns, at a rate of something like 100 bad non-Indians to every bad Indian. But that is begging the point.

The Pennsylvania Story

Whether To Adjourn

By Mason Denison
Harrisburg — There is little question about the fact that Pennsylvania's voters and taxpayers this Fall will hear much on the subject of whether Pennsylvania's 1960 Legislature should have adjourned or recessed, a point that may be finally decided this week.

There are a number of facets of this growing mountain-in-a-molehill issue worth noting. In the first place it must be conceded that the current 1960 session has little or nothing to do other than twiddle its legislative thumbs — a chore that fundamentally requires no particular dexterity around Capitol Hill.

This stems mainly from the fact that this is the first of the annual session series authorized by Pennsylvania's voters last November in a constitutional amendment requiring even-year sessions to deal exclusively with fiscal matters.

However, the biennial 1959 legislative gathering took care of this item last year when prior to the constitutional amendment approval it cleared the budget matters for the two-year 1959-61 biennium.

Nevertheless the lawmakers brethren — by virtue of the new constitutional amendment decree — had to journey to their desks this year. That's why they have been here so far — when not in recess, that is.

Once here the question arose of course as to what they should do. Notwithstanding the limited scope of their area of operations as decreed by the November-approved amendment, there were a few fiscal odds and ends that needed clarifying — over which the lawmakers have been duly quibbling.

Throughout this vein however ran the persistent thought of when to get out of town — and should it be finally or in recess?

The important point to bear in mind is that the final adjournment move has been initiated and vigorously backed by Democratic Administration legislative leaders — and by the Lawrence Administration.

On the other hand anti-administration Republicans in the House of Representatives (where they are in the minority) and Republicans in the Senate (where they are in the majority and in control of that chamber) have been strongly opposed to final adjournment, insisting on an extended recess.

Significantly, not in contemporary times has there been such extended debate and hassle over the point — and perhaps not without good reason.

It takes a split legislative branch such as Pennsylvania has now to bring about the situation facing lawmakers — with Administration legislators on one side of the fence and anti-administration lawmakers on the other.

The significant point is that neither Senate nor House can adjourn finally without the consent of the other chamber — which brings up the stalemate.

One of the key point revolves around the fact that an administration (the executive branch "out of its hair," or out of session as speedily as possible. In session or in recess the legislative branch always poses a constant over-the-shoulder threat to the executive branch.

Costwise, a session in full recess with per diem employees furloughed as proposed by anti-administration Republicans — is virtually expenseless.

On the other hand an extended recess with weekly token sessions — requiring obviously the retention of per diem employees and oil for legislative machinery — as proposed by Administration Democratic lawmakers as a chin-lifting "spite move" against recess — is insistent Republicans, obviously is costly.

Regardless of the outcome of the recess-or-adjourn controversy, it is destined to become a heated campaign issue this Fall — a confusing one.

Rising Barometer

On Broadway —by Walter Winchell

Show Business Communique
Bosley Crowther, the N. Y. Times film critic, on the hiring of a Fifth Amendment writer by director Otto Preminger.

"Mr. Preminger has come out and said that he is not concerned with the politics of a writer, that he is interested only in getting a good script. And he feels a person who writes it should be fully identified. Aside from the refreshing candor of this tolerant attitude, it is basically just and consistent with the working of democracy."

No great principle can be compromised. The differences between communism and democracy are not merely subjects for debate. They represent a fight for life. Those who believe in law and order do not act as referees between gangsters and lawful citizens. On this issue, we speak on behalf of nations already dead and those slated to be killed. And we express support of those principles by which people have a right to live. Compassion is a quality that approaches majesty. But forgiveness — and enriching — a man who is sympathetic to those who would destroy us — is hardly a demonstration of democracy. It is appeasement. And downright foolish.

Lauren Bacall's declaration of war: "If I'd known in advance what the notices would be, I'd have done it anyhow. I was less than charmed by the reviews, shall I say. What infuriates me is that the work and effort of so many people for so many months can be rapped in one night by a couple of fellows on the aisle who couldn't write a play themselves."

It isn't necessary for critics to be successful playwrights anymore than it is essential for actresses to be successful critics. Basically, the power of criticism lies in the weakness of the thing criticized. Over the years, critics have been called everything from fatheads to members of the Jukes family. Actresses have slapped them. They have been barred from theatres and kicked. The war is endless. As long as there are critics — their targets will criticize them.

John Crosby, the TV critic, has written: "The leading scientists of their day were absolutely convinced the world was flat. The outstanding medieval minds spent a lifetime trying to figure out how many fairies could dance on the head of a pin. And today we have people, who seem outwardly sane, who believe in rats."

The image of television is being carved out of fog. A billion-dollar industry, incredibly, is currently ruled by intangibles. Almost every decision is determined by statistics which cannot be proved, by conclusions which are unreliable, by methods which are irresponsible. It is absurd — and it is tragic: For the foggy notions have resulted in the loss of millions of dollars, the shattering of careers and an epidemic of anxieties. And despite the abundance of evidence about the inaccuracy of ratings, the daffy arithmetic generally dictates the programming of every network.

Walter Kerr, the Herald-Tribune play appraiser, noted: "A painting rests in its frame, a piece of sculpture thrusts itself into space, a novel lies patient and unprotesting until we are ready to nod to it, but the stage asks us to look at it so that we may look back, and make something of an eye-to-eye, nerve-to-nerve encounter."

All too often, unfortunately, it is a yawn-to-yawn encounter.

W. Somerset Maugham told the world: "The common idea that success spoils actors by making them vain, egotistic and self-complacent is erroneous; on the contrary, it makes them, for the most part, humble, tolerant and kind. Failure makes people bitter and cruel."

On the basis of this reporter's experience with thespians, the fact is that success enlarges their heads rather than their hearts. Failure is a devil, but success is not a guarantee of Paradise. For many stars, success has merely enriched their psychiatries.

Playwright Tenn. Wms. viewed with alarm: "Broadway is big business, they tell me. That's why I hate it and can't stand it. I think you work much better when there isn't all this money involved."

As Mr. Williams must know, the theatre is basically an economic unit. The guardians of a cultural heritage must function on the basis of realistic necessity. Survival demands that the theatre be self-supporting. The theatre must operate in conjunction with sound business methods. One cannot exist without the other. The theatre — in common with people composing it — must be nourished. The talent and imagination of players and playwrights are its blood. The slightest damage to the small capillaries eventually affects its heart. And its heart is the box office.

Social Security Guide

Q. I am 65 years old. I recently retired and moved to another state. Do I have to file my claim for social security benefits in the state where I was working?

A. No. You should apply at your nearest social security office. If you do not know the address you can find out from your local post office.

Q. How can I get a large supply of social security pamphlets to pass out in my organization?

A. Your local social security office can furnish you a limited number of pamphlets. If you need a large quantity, your local office can advise you how to obtain them from the Government Printing Office for a small fee.

Q. In my capacity as personnel manager I have been asked many questions concerning social security benefits by employees. It is time-consuming to call the social security office each time this occurs. Do you have a guide or other publications showing types of benefits and eligibility requirements that I could use?

A. There are several publications on hand that will enable you to answer most of the questions that arise. You should contact your local office and request copies of pamphlets explaining old-age, survivors, and disability benefits.

Q. I have worked for several different employers during the past few years. Is there any way I can check to see if all my wages have been reported?

A. Yes. We have a printed postcard form which you may complete and send in for a report on the amount of wages credited to your account. If your figures do not agree with the report you receive you should contact your local social security office for an explanation.

Q. I am a widow. My husband and I were not born in the United States. What proof will I need when I go to the social security office to file a claim for survivor benefits?

A. You will need proof of marriage. If you don't have a marriage certificate or a certified copy of it, get one from the clerk of the court in the city where you got your marriage license, or from the Bureau of Vital Statistics of the State in which your marriage took place.

16-Foot Clearance For Bridges

By Robert S. Allen and Paul Scott

Washington — Overpasses and bridges spanning major interstate highways are to have a 16-foot clearance from now on.

Reason is to permit the ready transportation of giant ballistic missiles.

The Defense Department has been urging a 16-foot clearance under interstate highway overpasses and bridges since 1957. Commerce Secretary Mueller has finally agreed to that, and his far-reaching decision will be announced shortly.

It will cost hundreds of millions of dollars in additional spending for new overpasses and to add several or more feet of clearance to hundreds of existing ones throughout the country. More than half of those built since 1957, under the government-supported 41,000-mile interstate highway program, have only 14-foot clearance.

The failure to give them 16-foot clearance, as Pentagon authorities advocated is about to be investigated by a special House Public Works Committee headed by Rep. John Blatnik (D. Minn.).

Officials of the Bureau of Public Roads and the Defense Department have been summoned for questioning on this costly mystery.

Military authorities have told Blatnik they vigorously urged 16-foot clearance for interstate highway overpasses and bridges to take care of the huge ballistic missiles and other new weapons. But the Public Roads Bureau at Commerce Department insistence, required only 14-foot clearance.

Since the 41,000-mile highway program was launched in 1957, more than 6,000 overpasses and bridges have been built. Pentagon experts estimate that upwards of 1,000 will have to be rebuilt for defense purposes.

To date, approximately $11 billion has been spent on the highway program.

U.S. Aid For Rumania

By Robert S. Allen and Paul Scott

Washington — Satellite Rumania is in the process of joining Poland in getting a large amount of U.S. economic aid in exchange for compensating American property was confiscated by the Communists after World War II.

Dadu Manescu, Deputy Finance Minister, and three other Rumanian delegates are completing negotiations here on that with Assistant Secretary of State Foy Kohler.

Being sought by Rumania is $150 million in credits and farm commodities. A considerably smaller sum will probably be agreed on, chiefly in grain and other surplus products.

The proposed economic aid for Rumania will be first from this country.

On file in the State Department are $260 million in American property claims in that satellite. Approximately $21 million has already been paid on these claims from gold Rumania had in the U.S. at the start of World War II, and which was seized when that country became a Hitler ally.

Under the latest economic aid agreement with Poland, it is getting $40 million in surplus farm commodities in return for paying part of the $100 million in property claims of U.S. nationals.

This and the anticipated Rumanian accord are expected to lead to similar ones with the other Soviet satellites, particularly Czechoslovakia, Hungary and Bulgaria.

There have already been preliminary discussions on this.

Basis of these far-reaching backstage developments is a new Administration policy designed to accomplish these objectives:

George Sokolsky Says . . .

Gamble In Retrospect

Nothing that appears today, in human or historical relations, started today. It takes a long time for a personality to be formed; it takes a longer time for character defects, once formed, to be corrected.

Were Gamble Benedict a poor girl who would probably not have attracted so much attention. Lots of girls run away with boys.

It is the fact that this girl came of a family of great wealth, that she went to the Chapin School, which is one of the three preferable schools for girls in New York, that she went to Briarcliff College instead of Smith, Vassar, or Bryn Mawr.

Of course, she probably could not have made Barnard or Radcliffe which are tough places, but a Chapin girl should have been able to go to more than a junior college — these guideposts tell much about lack of discipline or the wrong kind of discipline.

I have a letter from one somewhat related to this picture which is indicative of the environmental problem such children face:

"... As in any other family of very considerable wealth, children are turned over to servants, some of whom are true and loyal; too many represent the wealth and social position of their employers, and lose no time in smearing the parents and their friends to little trusting, believing children — filling their minds with anti-social ideas."

It is not so much that the maids and governesses resent the wealth of the parents as that their tenure is involved in keeping "that damn kid" quiet. I recently discussed this with a mother who "goes out of her way" to lunch with her child several times a week and to spend an entire day with her child at least once a week.

To most mothers, this will sound less than normal, but the fact is that in the social milieu of such children as Gamble Benedict, the child sees the parent so few hours a day that they are practically strangers.

Once the child goes to school, it is lost to the home. The hours between returning from school to bed-time are taken up with home-work, cocktail-time, mamma dressing for dinner, the child being dressed for bed-time, the child eating off a tray or in the kitchen, the gathering of the family to say good-night.

Whatever the pattern, the child is too remote from the parent. If the child has no religious influences in its life, the spiritual and inspirational development of the child is neglected altogether. Little is to be expected from schools, these days.

In broken homes, this relationship is aggravated by a prematurely ugly view of marriage, of sex, of extra-marital relationships, of adultery. Sex becomes too important to the child too early. The "bad" words, which are now called "four-letter words," come to the child too early in its life for its mental safety.

Quarrels among parents can poison a child forever and are a character formative. The child may be confused by what each parent says about the other, and much of it is believed by the child — at any rate, it leaves a permanent impression and will influence the child's life in many ways.

I have spoken to children who come from circles similar to Gamble's and over the years have come to know of their problems. It is heart-breaking at times to watch them trying to reach through to an understanding of what it means — why there are so many problems.

A child craves love, overt, manifested, direct affection. Love must be demonstrative.

A child is not a philosopher who can ponder upon the blessedness of the family system, if the family is less meaningful than the gang on the street corner or the kids in a school clique or around the soda fountain.

Searching for affection, a child will do almost anything. In the teen years, this search for affection can become brutally biological and what appears to a parent to be horrible mis-taking (and about that the parent can be absolutely correct) can appear to the child to be an answer to the quest for love — not sexual love as much as the warmth of confidence, friendship, kindness.

When parents say: "I've done everything for my children," they might look back and strike a balance between material things and love. We who came from the poorer homes are often the luckiest.

Try and Stop Me —by Bennet Cerf

A pretty young miss at a hotel cocktail bar spotted one of those rangy Texans, obviously a millionaire, and engaged him in what she hoped would prove a rewarding conversation.

"A millionaire, I'll bet," she grinned.

"Right nice of you to mention it, ma'am," he drawled. "A millionaire — and how."

"Oil or cattle, I suppose."

"You drew a blink that time, Missy."

"Real estate then."

"On the nose, Missy. I do own 37 acres."

The young lady's face fell a bit. "That doesn't sound like too much in those wide open spaces," she sniffed. "What do you call your place?"

The Texan answered quietly, "Downtown Dallas."

Land Yachts Hold Interest Of Emperor

The following interesting article was forwarded to Van D. Yetter, local dealer for Airstream Land Yachts. The article covers activities experienced by a group of caravanners from all walks of life and from all corners of the United States in a trip through Africa.

One of the most interesting tales the Africa Caravanners who are pioneering with Wally Byam from Capetown to Cairo in their Airstream Land Yachts are going to tell when they get back, will be about their official reception at the Imperial Palace of Ethiopia's Emperor, Haile Selassie.

This was conducted with formal court etiquette that required each couple to bow or curtsy upon entering the throne room, to bow or curtsy again half way across as they approached the emperor, and to bow or curtsy a final time when they were presented to this dignified personage who is the Elect of God, Conquering Lion of the Tribe of Judah, King of Zion, Negusa Nagast (King of Kings) and Emperor of Ethiopia.

After the presentation, champagne was served to the Caravanners and His Imperial Majesty asked to talk to various couples. He was most interested to learn just who these people were, and why they had worked so hard to get over primitive, camel trail "roads" to visit his country.

Only Taxpaying Americans

The Caravanners explained that they had no connection with the U.S. Government except to pay their taxes, and that they had come entirely as tourists, just to meet the Ethiopian people and see their country. All of them encouraged Haile Selassie to start a tourist department because they thought Ethiopia was the most beautiful country in Africa and had many attractions for visitors.

There is no record of the emperor's answer when he was asked by one of the ten-year-olds what he thought of rock 'n' roll, but the fact of the question indicates the freedom of conversation between the Caravanners and the most absolute monarch they have ever met.

When the reception was over, the Caravanners had to exist from the imperial presence with the same three bows or curtsies, only this time they were performed while backing toward the door. Most of the Caravanners are a little old to remember their dancing school days when they might have learned these formal gestures, and certainly in their lives as doctors and farmers, small businessmen and fruit growers, they have had no reason to practice such graces.

However lacking their performances, all of them managed without mishaps, and in any event, His Majesty was more impressed with their honest friendliness and interest in his country, than in the punctiliousness of their court department.

Adequate Supplies
The Wally Byam Caravan made its way to Addis Ababa overland. They discount reports of hardship since they all had adequate supplies of food, and their own comfortable travel trailers to live in, but they do have vivid memories of the hard work (cutting down trees, carrying buckets of rocks and earth to fill in gullies, pushing and pulling) it took to get the 1100 miles from Nairobi, Kenya to the capital of Ethiopia.

The route they followed was not a road in the formal sense of the word — traffic consisted of camel caravans, burros, and foot travelers. The only construction ever done was started by the Italians for Jeep-type vehicles. Since the Ethiopians have very few motorized units of any kind, they have not bothered to keep up even this rudimentary road building done nearly 20 years ago.

Only a group of tourists like the Caravanners would have considered making this trip, and only their long experience in group travel and cooperative effort brought them and their Land Yachts through.

As a parting salute to Ethiopia, before they headed north to Khartoum, the Caravanners entertained Haile Selassie at the caravan encampment. They decided to serve simple American refreshments at tables set up outside, in their own version of a "sidewalk cafe." The ladies of the caravan baked up batches of their favorite cookies, brewed pots of coffee, and iced up coke for the youngsters. His majesty toured the whole camp and asked to visit in about 12 of the 36 Land Yachts parked at the Royal Race Track. His interest in the Airstreams was so evident that the Caravanners are planning to send one to him as a "thank you" present for the really royal hospitality they enjoyed in Ethiopia.

Just Between Us —

—by Bobby Westbrook

Do you remember back to the days when you first got your television set, when the whole family went walking around like zombies blinking in the light of day after a week in the twilight world of the television set?

The fascination soon wore off and we soon became selective and a little superior about what we would watch and what we wouldn't. But I reverted this weekend, the first since Thanksgiving when I've had a chance to stay home long enough to catch more than the late news and weather and a smatch of Jack Paar.

I watched everything: basketball games, educational programs on Ghana and the Dust Bowl or the heart, late movies, Perry Mason and all. Groggily but contented, I emerged into a cold and windy world, a little confused to find myself on a stable keel instead of pitching on a ship at sea or caught in a dust storm or involved with blackmail or truck hi-jackers.

Seemed sort of calm, to tell the truth, if not dull, with the only activity in the office walking over to pour another cup of coffee. Or to discuss that shot at Wall made off the heel of his club when he lost the championship golf match after winning twice before.

"That I can do," chortled all the duffers, forgetting that the even counting that shot, he ended up with practically par golf.

Well, this will be a busy week, and I suppose I'll eventually get involved in all the activities. Right now, though, I have a sort of weary detachment—after all, I've lived through a great deal this week-end.

Miss Gail Bentley Bride Of Penn State Alumnus

Mount Pocono — Miss Gail D. Bentley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles S. Bentley of Pocono Manor became the bride of Charles L. Zoi, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles L. Zoi of Clairton, on Saturday at noon in the St. Mary's Church, Mount Pocono.

Rev. Robert Galligan performed the ceremony. Louis Vaccala was organist and the church was decorated with white flowers at the altar and greens on the pews.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a floor-length gown of peau de soie trimmed with Alencon lace and seed pearls. A crown held her finger veil and she carried a cascade bouquet of white roses.

Miss Sarah A. Grabe of Camp Hill was maid of honor and the bridesmaids were Miss Barbara Beamer, Toronto, Canada; Miss Carol A. Bowman of Greenville, and Miss Barbara Knight of Enola.

They wore dresses of red lace over taffeta and carried red and white carnations.

John R. Kelly of Philadelphia was best man. Ushers were J. Howard Brosius of Elkins Park; Peter Luckie of Hanover, and Carl Mees of Cleveland, Ohio.

A reception for 100 guests was held at Pocono Manor where the decorations repeated the red and white theme of the bridal party. The bride's mother wore a classic sheath dress of beige silk shantung. The bridegroom's mother wore bronze silk shantung with a matching jacket.

For traveling the bride chose a navy blue silk shantung dress with a jacket and wore a white rose corsage.

After a week's honeymoon in Florida, Mr. and Mrs. Zoi will make their home in Philadelphia. They are both graduates of the Pennsylvania State University. Mr. Zoi is an engineer with the Bell Telephone Co.

Monroe Girl Scout Council To Consider Plans For Merger At Special Meeting

The Adult Registered Girl Scouts of Monroe County will be faced with a decision of far-reaching importance at their special meeting called for Thursday night at 7:30 at the Stroudsburg Methodist Church:

(1) They may decide to continue the present set-up under the Monroe County Council of Girl Scouts with all activities centered within the county, or

(2) They may decide to participate in a Development Committee to explore the possibility of forming a new and larger Council which would include Lackawanna and Monroe Counties and all lone troops in Wayne, Pike, Susquehanna and part of Wyoming Counties.

The Development Council has already been approved by the only other council in the area, now the Scranton Council of Girl Scouts. This leaves the decision up to the local Council.

The executive board of the Monroe County Council has already considered the pros and cons of the proposed merger:

On the debit side, they list the fact that administration would probably be located in Scranton, Monroe County would lose its identity, and transportation in winter months would be difficult.

Among the advantages would fact be that more girls could be served with a more consistent program, professional advice and assistance would be available for the volunteers, there would be increased camping facilities including Camp Archbold an established camp, more program opportunities especially for Senior Scouts, and increased financial resources and more efficient use of finances.

The local board has recommended that the Monroe Council participate in the proposed development committee, but the final decision will be made by all members of the Council which includes leaders, assistants, troop committee members and consultants. In fact all Adult Registered Girl Scouts in the county.

LOOKING AROUND—

Chet Miller, program director of WVPO, and John Quaresimo off for ten days in the sunny south. Miami. Aside to their wives: if you need a baby sitter a couple of evenings, let me know! . . . When I walked in from the radio broadcast the other morning, I thought they were moving me out. Mary Hitesman was standing at my desk going through a drawer like mad, throwing stacks of stuff into the waste basket. She wasn't cleaning MY desk, however, just her mat drawer, discarding all the pictures and cuts of merchandise no longer in stock. As a matter of fact, our Wyckoff department heads are all doing this, making room for the onslaught of new advertising materials that arrive with new Spring shipments. If it continues I'll probably catch the fever and begin wading through the elbow-high stacks of papers I've accumulated these past few months. It's time for Spring cleaning at home too, so, if you care to lighten the task, visit Walter Wyckoff's departments and see the efficient, inexpensive rug and floor cleaning equipment, the lovely budget-priced scatter rugs, the vinyl floor coverings, shelf linings, and such that will brighten a home until it looks like new . . . You know, I HATE plastic table cloths, but I must admit that Walter's department stocks a plastic, felt-base covering that is so lovely it looks exactly like fabric. One all-white, with an embossed rose pattern is a perfect facsimile of expensive linen. This comes by the yard, and is a yard and a half wide. Carol Adams and Edna Bush are two Wyckoff employees who use it regularly and find it practical, attractive, and easy to clean. Most stains wipe off in a moment, but the entire cloth can be submerged in soapy water, or even placed in the washing machine. Carol tells me some people have it cut for round tables, some have it pinked on the edge, and others stitch real cotton fringe all the way around. . . . Carl Rohrbach handed me a note that is actually a Valentine to all of our female customers who like comfortable but smart casual and sport shoes. We have now added Smartaire casuals to our already extensive lines, and Carl tells me that while they sell for only 8.99 and 9.99 they have all the quality and beauty of a 15.00 shoe. Our new shipment features many styles in Navy, Bone, and Patent. . . . Notice that our stationery department has stocked numerous copies of "Mamas Way" by Thyra Ferre Bjorn, whose two previous autobiographical novels were the humorous and thoroughly delightful "Papa's Wife" and "Mama's Daughter". For light, enjoyable, common sense, clean reading these books are a delight. . . . Never did I know that Glen of Michigan fashions such entrancing clothes for little girls until Betty Smith showed me a full-skirted jumper with crocheted lace trim priced at only 5.98 in our girls' department. And the Kate Greenways this year are absolutely yummy! Good enough to eat. They'll turn any little girl into a confection just the size to fill your sweet tooth. . . . I am immensely flattered and pleased. Margaret Rickert of our lingerie department reports that, while snacking at the fountain, she entered into conversation with a very lovely lady who mentioned that her husband is a minister and has, on occasion, used excerpts from this column in his sermons. A compliment like that can make one happier (and humbler) for a lifetime.

Program On American Home Theme

Newfoundland: Mrs. Dawson Manhart, Greenwood, will read the commentary during the showing of "The American Idea," a program to be presented during the February meeting of the Federated Women's Club of Greene-Dreher at Southern Wayne Joint School Tuesday night, Feb. 9.

"The American Idea" is a series of 56 slides featuring the Celanese House, designed by the internationally famous architect, Edward Durrell Stone. The house is a daring adventure in residential design, and features twelve glass pyramid roof structures, supporting hanging gardens, beautifully landscaped terraces, enclosed patios, and plastic and fabric sliding panel room dividers.

The decor of the house is richly enhanced by original American paintings and sculpture on loan from the Whitney Museum of American Art.

In addition to the Celanese House, the program includes 20 more room settings featuring special window treatments and fabrics, which express the look and feel of America. All are functional, practical and perfectly keyed to living in the American homes of today and tomorrow.

A dress length will be awarded during the evening.

Bradley Kaiser Two Years Old

Delaware Water Gap — A birthday that was so full of exciting happiness for a two year old boy that he fell asleep the minute his guests left, was the Sunday experience of Bradley Kaiser, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Kaiser.

He attended Sunday School to be sung to by the children; had cousins in for lunch; blew out candles on his cake in the afternoon with cousins and neighbors to watch him. In between he rode a new wooden horse much farther than Danbury Town.

Business Activity At New High

UNIVERSITY PARK (AP)—Business activity in Pennsylvania reached an all-time high in December, the Pennsylvania State University's Business Research Bureau reported yesterday.

The peak activity marked a rebound from the effects of the steel strike.

In December, the general business index reached 196 percent of 1947-49, a gain of 9 percent over November and 8 percent over the previous December. The year's low had been in August, during the strike.

Payrolls Up
A 28-per-cent increase in bank deposits from November was the chief influence in the index's rise to the December peak. Industrial power sales rose 9 percent and factory payrolls increased 6 percent.

The industrial activity index climbed to 123 in December, a gain of 7 per cent from November and 9 per cent from the previous year. It is based on coal production, employee hours and also industrial power sales.

Areas showing general business gains by percentage were: Allentown (1), Bethlehem (6), Easton (3), Harrisburg (2), Philadelphia (1), Reading (3), Wilkes-Barre (6) and York (1). Erie (2), Lancaster (1), Pittsburg (3) and Scranton (2) showed a drop from November to December.

Moscow has clean streets because thousands of women are sent forth with brooms to clean up after the litterbugs.

Self-Employed Farmers Must File Tax Return

SELF-EMPLOYED farmers who report their earnings on a calendar year basis and who did not file an estimate of 1959 earnings by Jan. 15, 1960, must file their income tax return on or before Feb. 15, Harry R. Peterman, District Manager of the Eastern Social Security Office, said Saturday. If a self-employed person owes social security tax, he must file a return even though he would not otherwise be required to file an income tax return.

Only total earnings up to a maximum of $4,800 for 1959 should be reported for social security credit. The social security tax on 1959 self-employment earnings is 3 1/2 percent. While the social security tax goes up to 4 1/2 percent on self-employment earnings on January 1, this increase will not affect the farm operators report on his 1959 earnings.

Total Earnings

Peterman pointed out that only total earnings up to a maximum of $4,800 should be reported for social security credit.

For example, if in addition to his net farm earnings a farmer has nonfarm wages from employment covered by social security, and those wages amounted to less than $4,800 in 1959, the farmer will pay the social security self-employment tax only on that part of his net farm earnings necessary to bring the total up to $4,800 for the year.

While earnings of less than $400 in a year should not be reported, a self-employed farmer may report and pay the social security tax even when his actual net earnings are less than this amount. If his gross income from farming is $1,800 or less, the farmer may count as his earnings from farming either his actual net or two-thirds of his gross. If his gross farm earnings are more than $1,800 and his net is less than $1,200, he may report either his actual net or $1,200. However, if his gross farm income is more than $1,800 and his net is $1,200, or more, he must report his actual net earnings.

Peterman said that the optional method applies whether the farmer's actual net earnings are $400 or more, less than $400, or even if he has an operating loss for the year.

Mrs. Westbrook Speaker At Barrett Group Session

Mrs. Bobby Westbrook, Women's Fashion editor of the Daily Record, was guest speaker at the monthly meeting of the Barrett Community Club at the Barrett YMCA Feb. 3.

Stephanie Manhart, president, was in charge of the session. Peggy Krummell, program chairman introduced Mrs. Westbrook. She told some of the highlights of her recent trip to the New York Fashion Show. She said that big sleeves and suits with longer waist lines are the style right now. According to Mrs. Westbrook the reason that the styles change is because our mode of living changes, when life is easy going, so are our clothes.

Mrs. Westbrook showed many pictures of the new styles, including hair, shoes, hats, children's clothes and clothes for men. She also showed some of the gifts that she received and gave a short review on the current Broadway play "The Miracle Worker."

Refreshments were served by Marge Thomas, Phyllis Price and Pat McKeever.

The business portion then was conducted. Marien Scheim reported that the Nursery School has a full enrollment.

The club has been divided into three groups headed by the following leaders: Sigrid Larsen, Joyce Wilson and Jackie Moffett. The group under the leadership of Sigrid Larsen are planning a clothing exchange and white elephant sale to be held Mar. 18 and 19 at Mi-Lady Shop in Canadensis. The group under the leadership of Joyce Wilson are planning to have an April Fool Night on April 1 at Buck Hill Inn. Local talent from the different organizations in Barrett will participate in the program.

It was decided by unanimous vote to again have a fashion show in June. Stephanie Manhart is chairman and Eileen Wolfe are co-chairmen.

Elect Officers

Officers elected for the coming year were president, Marien Scheim; first vice president, Margery Thomas; second vice president, Bette McCambridge; treasurer, Molly Rogers; recording secretary, Phyllis Price and corresponding secretary, Edith Warner.

There will be a joint board meeting on Feb. 11 at Stephanie Manhart's home.

Dr. Finch Seen Relating Of Fleeing Death Scene

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Dr. R. Bernard Finch, composed again after a dramatic breakdown while testifying about his wife's death, is expected to tell Monday of fleeing the scene in panic.

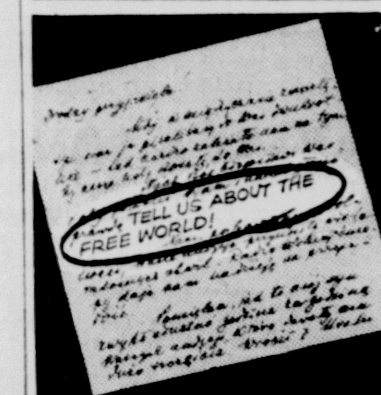

His account is near the end after three days on the witness stand at his murder trial — days in which he relived, as he termed it, the years of troubled marriage which led to a few angry moments of violence.

That violence, he said, came to a climax in the accidental discharge of a pistol. Suddenly all was changed.

With that shot, he testified, he and his socialite wife, Barbara Jean, 36, became a stunned husband and an understanding wife who died while he held her hand and sobbed.

shot was no accident. The wealthy suburban surgeon, 42, and his ex-model mistress, red-haired Carole Tregoff, 23, are on trial charged with first-degree murder in the July 18, 1959, shooting.

The prosecution accuses the couple of plotting Mrs. Finch's murder and going to the fashionable West Covina home to kill her themselves after a hired hoodlum botched the job.

Dr. Finch told Friday of a frantic fight over the pistol which he took after his wife drew. He attacked Mrs. Finch, he said, to disarm her. The revolver went off as he jerked his arm back to throw it out of reach, he related.

Short Distance

His wife ran a short distance, then "just crumpled right down the steps."

While several jurors wept and he fought for composure, the doctor told of his wife's last moments — of her telling him in a barely audible voice, "I'm sorry. I should have listened." And then her final words: "Take care of the kids."

She had two children, one of them by a previous husband. Before the state cross-examines Finch, defense attorney Grant B. Cooper plans to produce six witnesses from Minneapolis. Cooper said they will testify to "the poor reputation for truth, honesty and integrity" of John Patrick Cody, a convict who has told the jury Dr. Finch and Miss Tregoff tried to hire him to kill Mrs. Finch — not to get divorce evidence, as Finch contends.

Scranton Resigns As Herter Aide

WASHINGTON (AP) — William W. Scranton has resigned as special assistant to Secretary of State Christian A. Herter.

It has been reported Scranton plans to run for Congress on the Republican ticket in Pennsylvania's 10th district in the April 26 primary.

The 10th district is now represented by Democratic Rep. Stanley Prokop, serving his first term after unseating four-term Rep. Joseph Carrigg (R) in the 1958 election.

Scranton is the son of Mrs. Worthington Scranton, Republican national committeewoman from Pennsylvania from 1928 to 1953. She was vice chairman of the Republican National Committee from 1940 to 1944.

Scranton has served as Herter's special assistant since last June. Earlier he had been president of the International Text Book Co., president of Scranton-Lackawanna Trust Co., and board chairman Broadcasting Inc., of Scranton.

Stock Gift To Children

By William A. Doyle

Q. You have explained that it is now relatively simple to make a gift of stock to children. You have also explained that anyone who has less than $600 income for a year does not have to file a Federal income tax return for that year.

Furthermore, you have written that if a child qualifies as a dependent (as most children do) the parents can claim the child as a dependent when they file their income tax return.

This stops me cold. Am I to infer that all I have to do to be excused from paying Federal income taxes on up to $399.99 of my dividend income is to transfer stock paying that amount of annual dividends to my young son?

A. You can infer all you like. But if you are thinking of transferring stock to your son and using it as an excuse to evade your Federal income taxes, you may be headed for grief.

The laws (now in effect in all 50 states and the District of Columbia) permitting the gifts of securities to minors weren't passed to make it easy for you to gyp the Federal government. You can be sure of that.

After you make a gift of stock to your minor son, he owns the stocks — even though you or some other adult acts as custodian. The dividends paid on the stock are also his. That cash is not your cash. It is only supposed to be spent for the benefit of the child.

The rules on this are pretty strict. We have to be realistic and face up to the facts that all rules are enforced from time to time. William A. Doyle But you had better learn these rules before you go ahead with any gay scheme, such as the one you evidently have in mind.

Q. Can you tell me why the interest paid on debentures is usually higher than the interest on other bonds? For example, a well-known utility company recently issued both first mortgage bonds and debentures. The bonds were offered to the investing public to yield 5.3 percent a year. The debentures were offered to yield 5.55 percent. Why?

A. Because, unlike most types of bonds, debentures are not backed up to anything except the company's pledge to meet the interest payment and, at maturity, to pay back the face amount of the debentures. They are sort of like promissory notes.

Mortgage bonds, on the other hand, are secured by a specific lien on the company's property. If they are "first" mortgage bonds, they are not subordinated to any prior lien. They are the debt obligation the company must meet before any others.

Because of this, secured debt obligations normally carry a lower rate of interest than unsecured debt obligations.

Q. Why isn't Skiatron stock traded on the American Stock Exchange any more?

A. Trading in Skiatron stock was suspended as a result of an investigation by the Securities & Exchange Commission. The SEC is looking into "questions as to the accuracy and adequacy of factual disclosures contained in a registration statement filed by Skiatron."

The commission says the suspension was "necessary to prevent fraudulent, deceptive or manipulative acts in Skiatron stock."

That's right. I used a direct quote from the SEC on this one.

Easton Lady Found Dead

EASTON, Pa. (AP)—The bound and gagged body of a 63-year-old widow was found Sunday in a bedroom of her home.

The victim, Mrs. Sarah M. Ziev, apparently was overpowered by burglars at the home sometime Thursday night, police said. They theorized she had been suffocated by the gag.

A son, Donald, discovered the body when he came to pay a visit. All doors of the house were locked. Getting no answer, Donald investigated and discovered a kitchen window open. He climbed in and went to the second floor bedroom where he discovered the body.

The first floor of the home appeared in order. The second floor had been ransacked. A copy of a Thursday paper was strewn about the bedroom.

Mrs. Ziev had been bound with bedclothing, also used as a gag. Neither police nor the son was able to say what, if anything, had been taken from the home.

Mrs. Ziev lived alone. Her husband, who operated a moving van business, died 10 years ago. Her five children helped support her.

ELECTRICITY sparks the '60's

An inter-room communications system, complete with TV monitors, is only one of the many electrical marvels we are promised in the future. All-electronic cooking devices, electro-luminescent lighting panels for walls and ceilings, thermoelectric wall panels that heat and cool, electronic air conditioners, picture frame TV sets, waterless dish and clothes washers, refrigerators that operate without motors, electrostatic dust wands and built-in clothes cleaners are only a few of the others.

An important use of electricity destined for universal acceptance is for electric space heating. Already hundreds of thousands of homes, as well as thousands of commercial and industrial establishments, schools and institutions, are enjoying its unique advantages. As clean as electric light, automatically controlled with individual room thermostats, electric heating needs only a fraction of the space and equipment that other heating methods require. It is the fuel of the future!

Your electric company builds for this future—and it is a good one, filled with the promise of betterment in our lives—and in the lives of generations to come. Truly it can be said, "Electricity will spark the '60's."

Allentown Youth Killed In Crash

WILLIAMSPORT, Pa. (AP)—Robert C. O'Donnell, 18, Lycoming College student and son of Allentown's fire chief, was killed at dawn Sunday when his car crashed out of control and tossed him into a small stream in South Williamsport.

Another student, a passenger in the car, was injured but reported in satisfactory condition in Williamsport Hospital.

Police said O'Donnell and John Chiavaroli, 18, Shamokin, Pa., were en route back to the Lycoming campus at the time of the mishap. Chiavaroli said he was asleep when the car smashed into five guard rails and tumbled into the shallow water.

Police theorized that O'Donnell apparently had dozed and lost control of the vehicle.

Chiavaroli suffered contusions of the skull and shoulder. He was thrown clear of the demolished car and landed on the bank of the stream. O'Donnell's head struck a rock in the water, causing a fatal skull fracture.
